How to Choose the Right Camp?

Finding a great summer camp for your child, takes a bit of research. Here is our checklist to start your search for the perfect camp:

Focus

Do you want a general outdoor camp or a specialized one? Consider these components:

- Religion as part of the day-to-day program
- Academic environment
- Sports-centered setting
- Artistic atmosphere (creative, visual or performing arts)
- Technology setting

Activities

Do you want your child to have lots of activities or a fair amount of free time? If activities, which ones are important?

- Hiking
- Swimming
- Campfires
- Reading/Storytelling
- Archery
- Arts and Crafts
- Horseback riding
- Games
- Sports
- Performing Arts/Drama/Dance
- Field Trips

Duration

How long do you want your child at camp?

- One week
- Two weeks
- Three weeks
- Four weeks or more

Size and Gender

Smaller camps may make for closer relationships; larger camps often offer more group participation. Some kids may be more comfortable in same-gender camps.

First choose: Then decide:

- | | |
|---------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Small | <input type="checkbox"/> All boys |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Medium | <input type="checkbox"/> All girls |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Large | <input type="checkbox"/> Co-ed |

Location

Location and setting are key elements. Close to home or hundreds of miles away? An urban environment or wilderness?

Location

- Far from home
- Same region
- Same state
- Within 100 miles

Setting

- Country
- City
- Lakeside
- Mountains
- Oceanside

Be sure to factor in travel costs when planning your budget.

The best way to make the perfect match is to include your child in the decision-making process. Together, you should explore the camp options and examine the materials the camps provide. In addition, many camps have websites that include photos, maps or virtual tours of the camp facility, sample daily schedules and menus, and information about the directors and key staff. As children become better acquainted with the camp experience and more involved in the decision-making process, they will have less anxiety about going away to camp.

Tools to Help with Your Camp Research

■ Go to a camp expo. You'll find lots of camp information under one roof. You can talk with representatives of the camps you're interested in and gather brochures. (Atlanta Parent's camp expos are Jan. 21 at North Point Mall, Feb. 25 at Town Center Mall and March 18 at Perimeter Mall (all expos are from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.)

■ Search online. Most camps have extensive information and photos to give you a picture of what camp life is like.

■ Ask your family, friends and neighbors. Many of them were campers themselves or can tell you about their child's experience at camp.

Atlanta Parent Magazine's Camp Expo

For overnight camps

■ Visit the finalists. If you're unsure which camp is best, take your child and go for a tour. Some camps have open houses, and you'll get a good sense of how your kid will spend his week or weeks at camp. Consider starting your search a year in advance.

■ Get the names of former campers. Camps you're interested in should be able to help you contact former campers who can tell you what your child can expect.

12 Questions to Ask When Choosing the Right Camp

Finding a camp that provides the right fit for your child can be a challenge. There are lots of camps to choose from. Here are some questions to help:

- 1 What is the camp's philosophy?
- 2 What will a camper experience during the camp session?
- 3 How is the staff screened and selected?
- 4 What is the staff-to-camper ratio?
- 5 Is there a medical professional on staff? How are individual medical needs and emergencies handled?
- 6 What is the cost of camp registration, each session and other fees?
- 7 What is a typical day's schedule? Do campers have a set schedule or can they choose activities?
- 8 How is homesickness handled?
- 9 What are the restrictions, if any, on care packages?
- 10 How many children are in each group and how many are in each session?
- 11 Is the camp co-ed or single sex?
- 12 Have I asked each camp for references and spoken with them?

Spotlight on Summer Camps

Atlanta Junior Rowing

Learn to Row This Summer with Atlanta Junior Rowing! Two-week day camps are available for athletes looking to try out a new sport and get out on the river. All camps are held at the AJRA boathouse in Roswell, with practices on the Chattahoochee River. Learn-to-Row camps are open to campers ages 12 through 18, students entering 7th grade and up. An accelerated one-week High School Learn-to-Row camp is also available for high school athletes looking for an advanced experience.

Rowing has seen a tremendous surge in popularity at both the high school and college levels. The teamwork and camaraderie involved in the sport at every level continue to foster friendships and still remain the main reasons for the popularity of the sport.

No experience is needed for any athlete looking to get started in rowing, and many AJRA rowers continue on through middle school and high school with our competitive racing team. AJRA athletes compete at the highest levels regionally and nationally, bringing medals and regional titles back to Roswell. Check out our website for information about all summer camps, year-round programs, and online registration! www.ajracrew.com

Founded in 1922 by Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, CJL is one of Georgia's oldest summer camps and maintains its rustic camp setting and time-honored traditions. Today, CJL operates independently from the Girl Scouts and is open to all girls ages 7-17. One and two week sessions available June 4 - July 29, 2017. - ENTERTAINING: Everyday there is a live show presented by circus professionals to entertain and inspire your children.

Dunwoody Nature Center

The Dunwoody Nature Center features 22 acres and four distinct habitats that allow campers to explore nature as it was meant to be. By combining play and learning through different weekly themes, children are able to grow and develop at their own pace, reconnect with nature, and better understand their place in the natural world. Campers love to play in the teepee, dip their toes in Wildcat Creek, and test their skills in the forested playground. Year after year, the Nature Center's camps achieve satisfaction ratings of nearly 100% and most of our new camp families each summer come as referrals from other campers!

Join the Nature Center this summer on the beautiful grounds of Dunwoody Park and enjoy the expanded and updated camp facilities. Full day camps for rising Kindergarten through 5th graders group similarly aged friends and ensure a small camper to counselor ratio; while half-day mini-camps are just the perfect amount of adventure for 3 and 4 year olds. Early morning drop off is available for all camps and extended stay is offered in the afternoons for full day campers who want even more fun. Learn more about each week's theme and register online at www.dunwoodynature.org.

Porter Academy Summer Camp

While summer vacation carries happy memories of family, friends, and the great outdoors, it also has a downside. Many students suffer significant academic loss over the summer, and this loss seems to be exaggerated for children with learning differences. Porter Academy's goal is to help children maintain academic levels within a fun, relaxed atmosphere. Each of the five weeks has a different theme: Jurassic Park, Pete the Cat, Astronaut Adventures, Wild, Wild West, and Rainforest. Academics are interwoven into fun activities throughout each day as well as directly taught in small groups. This balance of fun and academics allows campers to relax and enjoy their summer while having academic skills reinforced.

Campers participate in PE, Occupational Therapy, Music Therapy, games, arts & crafts, and hands-on-learning activities as well as in-house fieldtrips including jugglers, magicians, hands-on science educators, and animal encounters. Porter Academy creates a fun and fulfilling summer program that keeps students engaged and learning throughout the summer, thereby linking their academic success from year to year.

For more information or to register, visit the website www.porteracademy.org or call 770-594-1313.
